xXx: REBORN SUMMARY

Logline:

Xander Cage comes out of retirement to steal the antidote to a bio-weapon that turns ordinary people into mindless killing machines, prompting the Pharma Baron who invented the weapon to send some of his own killing machines after Xander to get it back

xXX Franchise Story

'XXX' by nature is very similar to what Vin has been doing in 'Fast&Fourios' series over the years, so he and his fans can feel right at home.

And that's why after his 'return' in 'XXX: Return of Xander Cage', upcoming 'XXX 4' serves to be another and yet bigger dose of adrenaline rush.

The first installment, without much fuss, was named just as 'xXX'. It released in 2002 and featured Diesel as an adrenaline rush junkie with incredible athletic abilities. He is Xander Cage nicknamed 'xXx' (triple X), who is an extreme sports fanatic cum stuntman yet untouched by the law.

NSA Agent Gibbons (Samuel L. Jackson) forces him to undertake a dangerous mission in return for freedom from prison. The plot is as familiar as they come for an action thriller starring Vin Diesel.

Intimidating Russian baddies are trying to blow up Europe and our underdog Cage has to prevent them with his skills and swag. The film was solid albeit conventional. The action sequences actually made us gasp for breath but the director's cut carried extended footage that showed the demise of XXX.

The second one came out three years later in 2005 titled 'xXx: State of the Union'. It featured an entirely different lead from that of the first one. Ice Cube portrayed the role of Darius Stone, a former US Navy SEAL who is tasked by Gibbons to head to Washington, DC in order to prevent an insurgency within US Government.

Led by Secretary of Defence, General George Deckert, an attempt is made to assassinate the President. The new XXX agent Darius Stone is tasked with finding out the hidden radicals within the US bureaucratic circle with national importance and prevents an impending collapse of the nation. The movie tanked at the box office harder than anything that year. 'State of the Union' was severely criticized for its ludicrous plot devices and overall detached performance. Following its debacle, the series thankfully took a turn albeit a decade later.

The next one and the most recent one came out in 2017 as 'xXx: Return of Xander Cage'. As it turns out, Xander Cage was alive all these years. He had to come out of his self imposed exile when his Gibbons is hit by a suspicious satellite crash. Xander realizes that it's all about the Pandora's Box, a device that can use any satellite as a missile. He traces it to another deadly group who turns out to be former XXX agents. Xander forms his team that consists of Adele Wolff, Nicks, and the Torch. They specialize in their respective field.

Serena from the other group joins them over creative differences. They soon realize that they are used as pawns as the box is controlled by someone else, by someone within the system. Both the groups race towards retrieving the box and we get to see crazy action, CGI-filled fights, actual races, and good old adrenaline rush. The film became a huge success, topping the franchise, particularly because of Vin Diesel's return as Xander Cage after all these years.

The series was a good US profitable franchise; however its dominance in China is erivable. And that's why when we see so many Asian actors and settings in the 'XXX' movies we need to realize that despite looking so progressive, the reason behind this is entirely different.

xXX ' The film will explore today's political climate more closely. It will also play with the possibility of the world's next challengers , corrupted governments leaders , powerful pharmaceutical company creating new drugs turned into biological arms.

The inclusion of new Asian characters definitely means that the movie will charter new horizons. Since the core team is coming back, that means 'XXX 4' will also focus on their evolving relationships.

In xXx4 our favorite hero came to a small corner of the world

...on a mountain range, blue sky, fluffy clouds...to find peace. He spend his time training three athletic teenagers passionate by extreme sports seeing him as a master.

Cage suffers from a head trauma that is irrevocable and progressively debilitating.

In another part of the world :

KOMYO Medical based in Tokyo has developed and sold more than 1 billion units of KOMYO, the leading brainpower-enhancing supplement in the world .Dr Soro Reo, the owner, trying to find new ways to reverse the effects of neurodegenerative diseases such as Alzheimer's, Parkinson's and Huntington's. Dr Réa claiming to follow his very personal motivation - to save my mother who has since succumbed to Alzheimer's.

His real motivation is taking advantage of KOMYO's proprietary brain enhancing formula, we're ready to launch a brand-new weapon-grade antibody conjugate product that, once injected into a human host, it can more than double the host's brainpower, and increase body strength and agility by 200%

But Dr Reo drug was created to fight brain disease but specially for making biological weapons.

Reo is a powerful entrepreneur but also an arms dealer ready to sale to whom ever want to buy at his price. He is experienced this new drug in test subjects and his team realized they work for the bad guy.

The story starts when one of this Reo test subjects escape his facilities and one assistants take the drug and run away with it. Serena reappears in Cage life. We learned she is leading an evolved xXx Program with new funding, complete independence and zero obligation to governments or authorities.

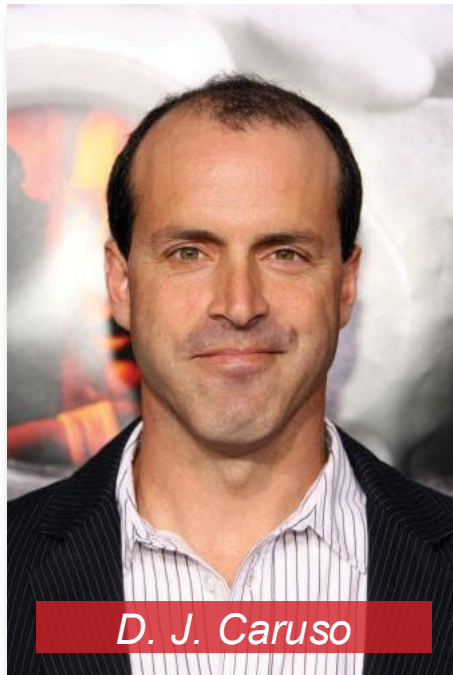

And the mission starts for xXx. When a elite unto came and try to kill him in his small peaceful place, well all this becomes very personal.

Through a big rim across of a whole continent Cage rediscover himself and his relationship with Serena and the new members of xxx program while accomplishing again his mission saving the world for new dangers.

FILM DIRECTOR

Daniel John Caruso Jr. (D.J. Caruso) is an American film director, producer, and screenwriter. His work encompasses a variety of genres, including thriller (Disturbia, Taking Lives), drama (Standing Up), horror (The Disappointments Room), and action (I Am Number Four, XXX: Return of Xander Cage). He has also directed numerous episodes of television series such as The Shield, Over There, Smallville, and Dark Angel. The majority of his films fall into the thriller and action film genres.

With John Badham as a mentor and a degree in Television Production from Pepperdine University, D.J. Caruso went from directing television series to motion pictures that usually ended up being in the thriller genre. D.J. Caruso got his first break out of school when Badham hired him as the second unit director for the 1993 action film "Point of No Return" after losing his original second unit director. Television became Caruso's entryway into regular directing work starting with the short-lived 1995 Fox sci-fi series, "VR.5." After padding his experience overseeing single episodes of "Martial Law," "Dark Angel," and "Smallville," the Connecticut native made his directorial feature film debut with the 2002 neo-noir motion picture, "The Salton Sea." Caruso followed this critically admired but commercially stilted effort with the 2004 Angelina Jolie psychological thriller, "Taking Lives." Only moderately successful at the box office, it nonetheless allowed the former television director to land more film projects. Aside from signing on to direct a handful of episodes of the gritty FX crime drama "The Shield," Caruso spent the remainder of the decade working as a movie director. His big break during that time came when Steven Spielberg hired him to direct the 2007 Shia LaBeouf thriller, "Disturbia," which grossed over $117 million and became Caruso's biggest hit until the success of 2017 xXx: Return of Xander Cage (grossing over $300 million at box office). He reunited with LaBeouf on the action thriller "Eagle Eye" the following year.
